RADICAL GATHERING. - Although last night was the regularly appointed time for a meeting. the Radicals of the Second Ward, only about ozen persons, mostly colored, assembled in e cellar of C. W. DeWitt's house, on the corg of Pitt and Queen streets, and it having een announced that "no quorum" was presthere was no organization, but Richard Miles and Armistead Webb, both colored, not having before had an opportunity to deliver themselves of their "opinions" on the questions involved in the campaign, ignoring the paucity of the assemblage, proceeded to "make a few remarks." Richard Miles said:

He hoped every member of the Radical party had his shoulder to the same wheel; trusted hat no differences existed between the four Wards in Alexandria; understood this meeting was called not for a discussion, but "for edifi-- tion and enlightenment;" remembered (!) the time when the people were so wicked that the world had to be destroyed, and the good were saved by going into an Ark, and he prayed all good, houest men, with tears in his eyes, to mehing struggle; the frosts of labor had of his head, his frame was wasting away, his sight growing dim, but he stood before this eting, to-night, an energetic, stanneli, and parompromising Radical. Then addressing the 'pesident of the club who was present, he said. am just talking, as you know, to kill time; I in not making a bona fide speech-DeWitt-Please make your remarks brief;

bu't kill too much time. Redicalism, said Richard Miles, continuing, was not a sect; while he admired old-time Radcals. he was much more pleased with the new converts to that faith. But here, Mr. President. I would say again that I wish you to unerstand I do not propose to make a speech; ham only talking to kill time, and upon the delitest hint from you to quit, I will yield the floor most cheerfully. The Radicals should smal firm-vote like a single man; if they would do this, the result of the next election would make every "Johnny Reb" tremble in his boots; had picked up a newspaper and read in it the most damnable accusation ever made against human beings-that colored people wanted to domineer over the white people in the same manner in which the blacks had been ruled; he would support the regular nominees whether they be black, white or grizzly gray; hoped that next Tuesday morning would dawn with victory for the Radical party; and closed by counselling every voter to go early to the is and speak his sentiments with his ballot. After some deliberation as to whether a nonresident of the Second Ward should be allowed

Joseph Colton, who said perhaps that person could tell them something they did not know, took the floor. Armistead Webb-Had not many remarks to make; gentlemen should not get worried over little things; there was too much wrangling going on in their ranks; such a course was not politic; stick by the regular nominees of the party; (A voice-his head's level) we all had better stop quarrelling and take up the shovel and the hoe; let us receive any man into our ranks, though he be the vilest rebel in to steak. Armistead Webb, at the invitation of Alexandria; there are too many office seekers; had heard a member of the Radical party say he would not vote for the regular nominee-Geo. L. Seaton; (Cries of Who was it,? Was white or black? Is he in this house.)

Joseph Colton-It's not me. The Speaker went on to say that he had been ered $500 for his vote; saw a man who prolessed to be a Radical at the last election, east his vote against the party. Joseph Colton-One might infer, from your broad assertions, that you have allusion to some of us here present.

Webb-I heard Thos. J. Edelin say that he had voted for Mr. Beach, and Squire Moore had done the same thing; Mr. Harrison Kirk offered me $500 for my vote, but in the midst of all this, like King David's horses, I rushed on to the field. I will vote for the regular nominces at the risk of my life; had been called a d---n fool when he supported John Birrell had been raised among rebels, but always reegived kind treatment; had heard C. W. De Witt called an agitator, and had been told that he taught the colored people more than they puelit to know-

C. W. DeWitt, interrupting the speaker, asked him please to make his remarks a little shorter. Webb-I'll buy you two more caudles, if that's what you'r alarmed about.

De Witt-Your natural kindness, sir, is not so great as your professed generosity; I buy these candles myself and pay for them and not a cent have I ever received from you. It's getting late-taking out his watch-it's almost eleven o'clock (Several voices-Let the speaker proceed! On on, no gagging here!) when C. W. DeWitt, yawning once or twice, arose from his seat, put on his hat, and hobbled up stairs, followed by the entire audience, leaving the dimly lighted cellar to the undivided possession of the indignant orator-Armistead Webb.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Sinking Fast.—Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, other specific indication of disease, how often de we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead alive state simply went invigorating this dead alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system; brace the nerves: tone the stomach, break the morbid trance of body and mind with a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It can be done. It has been done in thousands of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up, however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, this powerful vegetable restorative is a genuine clixir. It is not a more stimulant that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the causes of debility by altering the cretions, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as re-enforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, secause it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the oct 30-colw

El Vino Catalina.-The announcement that has been so generally heralded throughout the country that an American company has again commenced importing this celebrated Wine Tonic is a matter of no small importance, and will be hailed with joy by all those seeking a pure and invigorating tonic; also, those who both money and account.
